By the Queene.

Whereas the Queenes most excellent Maiestie, vpon information heretofore geuen vnto the same, of the great and excessive pryses that wyndes, transported hither out of Fraunce, were growen vnto, much to the impoueryshing of this her realme, did (for the preuenting of the inconuenience that was lyke to encrease & ensue therof) by her Maiesties Proclamation, bearing date the .xv. day of July, in the .xvii. yeere of her raigne, notifie and publish vnto such her Maiesties subiectes, as dyd and doo vse the trade of bryngyng in those kyndes of wyndes, that they shoulde forbear to bring into any parte of this Realme the sayde wyndes, vnlesse they myght better & bent them after the rate of ten poundes the Tunne, with al maner of extraordinary charges, vpon suche payne as in the sayde Proclamation is conteyned. And although her Maiesties good and gracious meanyng therein, by the indirect and couetous practises of some persons that brought in the said wyndes, toke not so good effect as her expectation was it shoulde haue done: Yet her Maiestie and her priuie Counsel, fynding by good experience, that it is both necessarie and profitable to her subiectes, to continue the order of the sayde former Proclamation, not onely for suche wyndes as shalbe hereafter brought into this Realme, out of the Countrey aforesayd, but also honorable to her Maiestie, to cause the same Proclamation to be duely executed for those that haue been brought in since the publishing therof, and remaine yet vnfolded by the Marchaunt. Therefore her Maiestie, with the aduice of her Counsel, straitely wylleth, chargeth, and commaundeth al her subiectes, and others, that shall bryng those wyndes into this Realme, duely to obserue the same rate and pryce of ten poundes the Tunne, with all maner of ordinary and extraordinary charges, vpon payne of imprysonment, and of such further penaltie and punishment, as by any maner of Statute, Lawe, or Prerogatiue, may be inflicted vpon the transgressours and contemners thereof: wherein her Maiesties intention is, and so she publysheth by these presentes, to all her sayde subiectes, that no fauour, tolleration, or qualification, shalbe vsed vnto them, in respecte of the great benefyte that is lyke to redounde to this Realme, by the due obseruation thereof.

And whereas by the sayde last Proclamation pryses of Retaylers and Watterers of the sayde wyndes, aforesayde, straitely commaundeth and chargeth, that r.
